RALEIGH, (SGRToday.com) - The eastern portion of the Winston-Salem Northern Beltway will be finished sooner due to action by state transportation officials.

The Winston-Salem Journal reports officials approved a plan to finish the project using money in the new state budget, which bumped up road funding. The budget ended the years-long practice of diverting road funds to the general operating budget.

The paper reports that when it's finished, the Beltway will be called I-74.
