

Duke Wins National Championship, Feast On The Way From Wisconsin Gov. Scott Walker

By Administrator

Tuesday, 07 April 2015 05:24 -

RALEIGH, (SGRToday.com) - Wisconsin Gov. Scott Walker is ready to pony up on his bet with Gov. Pat McCrory. With Duke beating Wisconsin for the national championship in college basketball, Walker is on the hook for cheese, root beer, and sausage.

The sports booty is part of a bet between the two governors. Had Wisconsin won the game, McCrory was prepared to pack up Cheerwine, barbecue, cole slaw and hush puppies to Walker.

“The national championship has made this Duke team special in a program that has a history of producing special and outstanding teams,” said the governor in a statement. “This has been a landmark season for Coach K. In addition to winning his fifth National Championship, this was the season he surpassed 1,000 wins. North Carolina is fortunate to witness the building of one most impressive coaching legacies, not only in basketball, but in collegiate sports.”