RALEIGH, (SGRToday.com) - His supporters say his tenure at Western Piedmont Community College has prepared him well for the top job at sister property Montgomery Community College. And by taking the oath earlier this month, Chad Bledsoe has begun his work as the new leader of the Troy campus.

Bledsoe won the job after a search committee conducted an exhaustive search that narrowed to four finalists.

According to the courier-tribune, Bledsoe told those gathered for his installation that the next years of the college will be marked by changes in technology and the economy.
