RALEIGH, (SGRToday.com) - Steve Messick is the new District Court Judge in the 15A district that covers Alamance County, while Richard Holloway will hold the seat in District 25, covering Burke, Caldwell and Catawba counties.

Both received appointments this week from Gov. Pat McCrory.

Messick is a member and manager of The Messick Law Firm, PLLC in Burlington, which focuses on family law, bankruptcy and guardianships, among other areas of litigation. Messick previously served as a State Bar Councilor for Judicial District 15A.

Holloway will replace District Court Judge Gary Dellinger, who retired on December 31, 2014. Holloway is a Caldwell County native, and an assistant district attorney for the 25th Judicial District. He has held the position since 1998. He received his undergraduate degree from UNC – Chapel Hill and his law degree from Campbell University.
