RALEIGH, (SGRToday.com) - The state's Executive Mansion will be filled with North Carolina mayors Wednesday evening when the Metro Mayors Coalition is welcomed to the downtown Raleigh home of the governor for a reception and awards presentation.

Gov. Pat McCrory will feel right at home; he served more than a dozen years as the mayor of Charlotte before being elected governor in 2012.

The event begins at 6:15 p.m.

It is open only to credentialed press.

The coalition is active in the public policy arena as the legislature considers bills with impact on local communities.
