RALEIGH, (SGRToday.com) - The Highway Patrol has honored employees for dedicated service to the state. The awards were presented by Colonel Bill Grey, commander of the North Carolina State Highway Patrol and Frank L. Perry, Secretary of the Department of Public Safety.

“The employees recognized today for their dedicated service to North Carolina have taken their calling to a higher level,” Secretary Perry said of the awards. “This special recognition is well deserved for those who have exhibited extraordinary acts of service within their profession.”

The Highway Patrol Meritorious Award is given by the Patrol to a member or members who serve the state of North Carolina in an outstanding manner.

The Highway Patrol Samaritan Award is an award bestowed to a member of the Patrol who went beyond the call of duty to aid or assist a fellow citizen.

The Highway Patrol Humanitarian Award is an award that recognizes an employee or group of employees for outstanding volunteer public service that significantly contributes to individuals, groups, organizations, or communities in North Carolina.

The Highway Patrol Appreciation Award is given in recognition of a citizen or group who has significantly contributed to the success and mission of the Highway Patrol.
