RALEIGH, (SGRToday.com) - As the race for U.S. Senate comes down to the final weekend, a major national pollster says it's anybody's guess who will win: Democrat Kay Hagan or Republican Thom Tillis.

Stuart Rothenberg of the Rothenberg Political Report released this evaluation, moving the race from "Tossup/Tilts Democratic" to "Pure Tossup."

Wrote Rothenberg:

"Voters in the Tar Heel State don't seem to like Hagan or GOP challenger Thom Tillis, but one of them will win on Nov. 4. Hagan's lead seems to have all but vanished, and Republicans who a month or two ago were quite pessimistic about the race have grown cautiously optimistic. This race now looks too close to call."
