RALEIGH, (SGRToday.com) - Jeb Bush, Ben Carson and Scott Walker are grouped together in a lead pack of potential 2016 presidential candidates supported by North Carolina Republicans.

Bush, the former governor of Florida, has been known as a supporter of school choice. Dr. Carson has built a reputation for his oratory. Walker, the governor of Wisconsin, has become a star due to the public fight he's waged and won against labor unions.

Public Policy Polling reports that all three men garner 14 percent of the vote. Former Arkansas Gov. Mike Huckabee pulls 13 percent.
