RALEIGH, (SGRToday.com) - Republican presidential candidate Jeb Bush will make a major economic speech in the Wake County town of Garner next week.

Bush campaign officials say the former Florida governor will visit Morris and Associates Wednesday for a lunchtime address.

Bush had been considered the frontrunner for the party's nomination until entrepreneur Donald Trump took the lead several weeks ago. Trump has targeted Bush by name in his stump speeches, an indication the businessman sees Bush as his chief rival, according to political watchers.
