RALEIGH, (SGRToday.com) - Sue Googe says it's time for a fresh voice in the heavily Democratic 4th congressional district, and she wants to be that voice.

Googe, a Cary resident who owns a real estate company, says she will seek the GOP's nomination for the congressional seat in March.

Googe faces a steep hill should she win her party's nomination. Price won his 2014 race with 75 percent of the vote over Republican Paul Wright.

The district includes the progressive enclaves of Chapel Hill and Carrboro.
