

{audio}files/preroll.mp3;files/Shows/2011/060611_SGR_Exclusive_Reed.mp3{/audio}

One of the political targets for the Republicans in the state legislature is Planned Parenthood, the family planning organization that also performs abortions. Why are they a target and what's going to happen to Planned Parenthood Health Systems in North Carolina? The North Carolina Planned Parenthood Vice President of Public Policy Melissa Reed joins host Barlow Herget to answer these questions. Reed also describes the changes and loss of revenue her agency faces in a number of bills moving through the legislature.